

Tech Supplies Buying Group

January 15, 2007

To Whom it May Concern:

Justin Cole has been with PRC Technologies since June and has proven to be an invaluable asset. He carries a very positive attitude about the business and the work he is assigned while maintaining a realistic understanding of the market in which he works.

In addition to the assigned tasks Justin is given he has proven himself numerous times to be a self starter and motivator. He has innovated several new product concepts nearly all of which are being steadily pursued to market for our busy season this summer.

Due to Justin's work ethic he has a desire to pursue additional work in an effort to further advance his skill-set and to further advance himself financially. We value his work highly enough that we have agreed to work a "outside working hours" schedule with Justin so that he may explore additional employment opportunities in addition to helping us develop our marketing strategies.

I highly recommend Justin for any type of technical work and I assure you he is a quick study and that his ethics and nature will result in a successful experience for your organization as it is with ours.

Sincerely,
